JURORS CLEAR SAWYER AID IN CAMPAIGN QUIZ

Rule Inquiry Fails to Show Evidence of 'Shakedown' in Civil Service.

FLAY DAVEY'S REGIME

Claim Governor's Forces Asked Aid From Undertakers Who Buried Pensioners.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—A Franklin county grand jury investigating political "war chest" contributions today absolved Charles Sawyer's campaign manager of "any culpability whatsoever" in charges of soliciting civil service workers in violation of state law.

Headquarters of Gov. Martin L. Davey, opposed by Sawyer for renomination, had charged that Hugh L. Nichols, Sawyer's campaign manager, sought contributions from two employes of the state division of aid for the aged.

Evidence Lacking.

"Diligent inquiry into the charges made against Nichols," said the jury's final report, "failed to find any credible evidence whatever tending to show any culpability whatever on his part."

The jury's final report vigorously criticized as "deplorable" the conduct of some state government departments, finding that many of their employes were obligated to spend their time in working for the renomination of Governor Davey.

The jury, which indicted 18 officers and employes in the Davey administration for soliciting or receiving funds from civil service workers in previous reports, returned no additional bills today, but recommended that Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy impanel another special grand jury to continue the investigation.

The grand jurors asserted "pitiful appeals are being made to recipients of aid for the aged for their suffrage and support" by the Davey administration.

"We find no statute forbidding such solicitation," the report added, "but we do think the dictates of common decency would forestall such procedure."

Used State Stationery.

The jury criticized use of official state stationery for writing campaign letters, condemned assignment of civil service employes to political work while on the state payroll and suggested that Davey's letter-writing campaign might have been carried on with use of state postage but added this was not proved.

The report found that costs for funerals of old age pensioners had risen sharply and that Davey campaign managers were using this as an appeal for financial aid from undertakers.

"We discovered a new office, to wit, mortuary visitors," the report said of the aid to aged division. "We labored diligently to discover an excuse for their existence and failed to find it."

TENSION GROWS

Russo-Jap Crisis Greater as Soviet Protest's Rejected.

TOKYO —(UNS)— Its gravity heightened now by a pitched border fight, the Russo-Japanese diplomatic war grew more serious today when Japan quickly rejected a Soviet protest over the latest frontier incident.

Japan, in turn, lodged a vigorous counter-protest with Moscow.

While Japanese-Manchukuo and Soviet troops continued to face each other across the Siberian border near disputed Changkufeng hill, Konstantin Smetanin, Soviet charge d'affaires, demanded that those allegedly responsible for violation of the Siberial frontier in yesterday's fight be punished.

FINISH LARGEST 'PHONE PROJECT

Mansfield Company Announces Completion of $250,000 Expansion Program.

What is hailed by company engineers as the largest single expansion step in Mansfield telephone history was virtually completed today.

The program, which culminates more than a year of plant expansions, represents an outlay of $250,000, LeRoy Wittemire, general manager of the Mansfield Telephone company, said.

The improvements include:

1. A $35,000 Woodland sub-station with automatic switching equipment.

2. A $15,000 addition to the present central office on Park avenue west.

3. Extensive underground improvements including 10 miles of conduit and cable representing an expenditure of $200,000.

Begining Monday the company will cut-over 900 telephone subscribers to the new Woodland exchange on Lexington avenue just south of the city limits.

The cut-over which will take approximately two weeks to complete will improve service in the Woodland area, Wittemire said.

The new exchange is of modern design capable of expension to many times its present size. It is of fireproof construction throughout.

The equipment, all of which is automatic and connects the Woodland subscribers with the central office, is identical to that of the main exchange except that all operators are still located at the central office.

Gustav Hirsch, chief engineer of the company pointed out that should the firm at some time in the future consider dial equipment

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Edward Grossman, 8, lay on a hospital bed early today, suffering from a severe scalding. Nurses, watching the clock, knew he was dying. They knew his father was speeding in an automobile from Ontario, where he had been fishing.

At 12:13 a. m., Edward Grossman, sr., drove up to the hospital in a mud-stained automobile, ran to his son's room and saw him smile. He had driven some 500 miles in 11 hours. At 12:15 a. m. the boy died.

ROBINSON HIRES ATTORNEYS TO FIGHT OUSTER

2 Lawyers Accompany County School Head to Meeting as Board Acts on Charges.

SUPERINTENDENT SILENT

Marriott Also Attends Session, Declines to Comment on Findings of Probe.

BULLETIN

On the application of attorneys for Boyd Robinson, county superintendent, the county board of education today set Aug. 27 for a hearing of charges of malfeasance against him. The charges were filed today by four of five members of the Union rural school board.

Prepared to fight attempts to oust him as the result of alleged irregularities in office, Boyd Robinson, county superintendent of schools, called two attorneys to represent him at a meeting of the county board of education shortly before noon today at the courthouse.

With Robinson at the session were Attys. A. S. Beach and J. V. Will, who declined to comment on the ouster charges before the meeting.

Wrangle Over PWA Grant.

Also at the session was Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott, who said he had completed an investigation of charges that Robinson had usurped the authority of the Union rural (Weller-Franklin townships) board in applying for a PWA grant for a new school building.

Marriott, likewise, refused to reveal the nature of his finding, and county board members remained silent.

Floyd Hunt, Mansfield, one of the county board members who demanded Robinson's resignation last month, said the meeting would decide whether Robinson is to stay at the head of the county schools.

Question of Authority.

Hunt had previously stated that he would ask for the county superintendent's resignation immediately if the prosecutor's findings reveal he went beyond his authority in asking for a PWA grant without the consent of the Union rural board. The federal funds were to build a new high school in Weller township.

With Hunt in his ouster demand was C. G. Tugend, Worthington township member of the board. Both were elected last November.

Two other members, Neil S. Robinson and L. L. Rinehart, board president, are backing the superintendent, while J. M. Snook, the fifth member, said he wanted a thorough investigation before expressing an opinion.

Both Neil S. Robinson and Rinehart had charged that "personal grudges and politics" had figured in the move to oust the school head.

Robinson admitted signing applications for a PWA grant, but contended that Charles Marr, architect who had drawn plans for the proposed school building, had filled out the blanks and submitted them to the state department of education.

SHIRLEY'S ILL

Child Actress Ordered to Bed, Runs Temperature.

BOSTON—(UNS)—Shirley Temple, smiling million dollar baby of filmdom, today was ordered to bed and told she must have complete rest for at least 48 hours.

Doctors hastily summoned to the Temple suite, said the dainty little queen of movieland had a temperature of 101. They said she was ill from the heat, excitement and overstrain.

The verdict of the doctors caused immediate cancellation of Shirley's intended Boston program.

Two doctors came as quickly as a taxicab could bring them.

"Nothing really to worry about," they said in substance. "She's a sick little girl. She ought to go right back to bed and stay there for at least two days."

Missing Clipper And Scene of Search

Shown above is the Hawaiian Clipper missing in the Pacific somewhere 500 miles southeast of Manila, with 15 persons aboard. Discovery of a patch of oil on the clipper's route indicated today that the flying boat had either sunk in the Pacific or had dropped oil to quiet waters for an emergency landing. At the right is a map of the area where ships are searching for the missing plane.

Old Schools To Benefit Too, If Bond Issue Wins

Program Calls for Modernization of City's Grade Buildings, New Manual Training Shops.

EDITOR'S NOTE: In two previous articles, conditions of old school buildings, to be replaced if the $550,000 school bond issue passes Aug. 9, were described. Today's article deals with improvements to be made at buildings now in use.

By JANE WILLIAMS

While the two major items covered in the proposed million-dollar school building program are the new junior high school buildings, there are other features that are also important and designed to meet an urgent need.

Everywhere there is a growing sentiment that manual training should play a more important part in public school education, that boys should be taught a practical trade along with their academic work.

In 1926, when the new Senior high school building was designed, it was thought that more than ample space had been provided to meet this need. But in the past ten years, more and more boys have turned to manual training, until it has become one of the most important departments of the school, and the need for larger working space has increased accordingly.

New Shop Building.

To meet this need, the proposed building program includes a new shop building at the high school. It will be 60 by 100 feet, constructed of steel, steel sash, brick curtain walls and a fireproof roof, together with proper ventilation. The building would provide a space 40 by 60 feet for woodwork students and a space 60 by 60 for an auto mechanics department.

It would be built immediately west of the main building, at an estimated cost of $25,000.

New Sanitary Facilities.

The worst physical features of Mansfield's school system are the

"Thank God that's over. I hope this statement will dispose of hideous reports suggesting I was after Barbara's money."

In the agreement Haugwitz-Reventlow waived any right he might have had under Danish law to half of the Woolworth heiress's estate. A substantial sum was settled, under the agreement, on their son, Lance.

QUEENSTOWN, Ireland —(U P)—Douglas Corrigan, who started out from New York in his $900 airplane for Los Angeles and landed in Ireland, wants to make a coast to coast tour in the United States exhibiting his plane, he said today as he sailed for New York on the liner Manhattan.

Corrigan's plane preceded him on the steamship Lehigh to Baltimore. A hero's welcome awaits him in New York.

This morning, as the liner sailed, a big crowd cheered him.

"Come back and see us sometime," those in the crowd shouted as the tender left.

"I'll slip back sometime," Corrigan answered.

PASS HALF-WAY MARK IN FLIGHT

Young Columbus Fliers Aloft 48 Hours; One Goes to Sleep.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Wearied by sleepless hours, 20-year-old Bill Bullock and Cliff Haney passed the half-way mark today in their attempt to remain in the air 80 hours. At 9:20 a. m., they had been aloft 48 hours.

"About 11:30 (Friday night) we were flying over the field (Port Columbus) at 800 feet," a note dropped from the plane said. "Cliff was dead to the world and we ran out of gas. I put the ship in a dive, threw a can of gas into Cliff's lap and I think he pumped the whole can in before he woke up. Sure was close."

The National Aeronautic association reported in Washington today that it had discontinued recognizing endurance marks.

SHANGHAI —(UNS)— A clash which is expected to develop into a battle of major proportions raged today as Japanese troops advancing up the Yangtze river valley toward Hankow encountered the main body of Chinese defenders.

MAYORS 'FLOP' AS MILKMAIDS

Heads of 4 Communities Show They're Better Executives as Fair Ends in Glory.

The 1938 Richland county fair was written into history today following yesterday's closing day program at which a huge crowd decided that the mayors of four towns in the county might be good mayors but as cow milkers they were "flops."

The mayors tried their hand as milkmaids before a packed grandstand and all of them emerged "winners," not because of their skill, but because judges decided that no one mayor had it over the others as a milker.

Mayor C. M. Hunter of Mansfield, Mayor D. B Young of Shelby, Mayor L M. Smith of Lucas, and Mayor Charles Nelson of Shiloh, the participants, each got a pound of butter for their efforts. The "prizes" were donated by the Richland county Farm Bureau.

"They all had too much dirt in their milk buckets at the finish," was the decision of the judges, C. C. Hout, R. D. Hale and A. W. Strater.

The contest, arranged by H. H. Wolf, fair board president, was entirely a fun fest with Jim Brownsberger

CITY CUTS OFF WATER TUESDAY

Woodland, South Boulevard Lines to Be Closed for Five Hours.

Housewives in the Woodland and South Boulevards area who don't get their washing done on Monday next week will have to wait until Wednesday.

James Herlihy, waterworks superintendent, said today that the water in those districts will be shut off for about five hours Tuesday morning, from 7 a. m. until 12.

A new valve is to be installed at the reservoir, in connection with the new trunk line on Cook road, necessitating the shut-off.

He said the water might become cloudy after it was turned on, but would still be safe to drink.

One Train Passes, 2nd Kills Him

BOATS SCOUR AREA TO FIND TRACE OF SHIP

Motor Fuel 'Clue' Located on Route of Flying Boat 500 Miles From Manila.

STILL HOLD OUT HOPES

Searchers Cite Possibility Ship Poured Off Oil Then Landed, Remains Afloat.

(By Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO — A "thick oil area," marking the spot where the transpacific Hawaii Clipper presumably hit the ocean, was discovered by the army transport Meigs today 500 miles from Manila.

A radio message from the searching transport, intercepted here, told of the discovery of the tell-tale oil slick directly in the line of the clipper's course when she disappeared Thursday night with 15 men aboard her on a flight from Guam to Manila.

1,500-Foot Area.

The message signed by the captain of the Meigs and directed to military headquarters in Manila, said the oil-coated area was about 1,500 feet in circumference. A lifeboat was immediately lowered to investigate the slick and take samples of the oil and water.

The message was confirmed later by army headquarters in Manila.

At Pan American Airways headquarters here, where officials awaited confirmation of the message, hope was held the oil indicated the 26-ton flying boat had made an emergency landing rather than marking the spot where the craft sank.

The clipper carried a supply of heavy oil to quiet seas for an emergency landing. Airways officials said this may have been dumped for an emergency landing and drifted to sea faster than the clipper.

But this did not account for the failure of the clipper to radio an emergency landing was necessary, or report later by her wireless, capable of communicating while drifting on the sea.

Stays In Zone.

Pending further investigation the Meigs was remaining in the same position at latitude 12.11 north, longitude 130.33 east. This is about 500 miles from Manila, or 65 miles east of the position given by the clipper when her radio suddenly went dead.

The radio message was intercepted by operators here shortly before 2 a. m. (PST).

An oil coating is left on the surface by a plane when it sinks in the ocean. Similar oil slicks indicated the last resting place of the Samoan Clipper, only other Pan American flying boat to meet disaster in three years of flying over the Pacific. Seven men were killed when the Samoan Clipper exploded in mid-air of January this year.

Persons familiar with far eastern Pacific waters said there was little likelihood the oil came from any other source than the missing clipper. The position is in an area not traveled by steamers or by planes.

Soapbox Entrants Make Final Check For Racing Event

Today The News-Journal Soap Box Derby drivers were making last minute inspections of their motorless cars for Wednesday's championship race at Sturges Hill.

All of the drivers who participated in the trials earlier in the week were satisfied with the speed of their cars, and only minor changes were necessary to complete preparations for their race, they said.

Drivers will take their cars to the Mohican Chevrolet company Monday. There will be no display until the day of the race.

Cars will be inspected for construction defects Monday afternoon, and the "weighing in" ceremonies will be held Tuesday in charge of representatives of the Toledo Scale company.

The entries will also be judged for special prizes Tuesday, Donald D Cram of the Y M C A., Derby director, announced.

Launch Campaign To Stimulate Home Building, Remodeling

A campaign to stimulate the building of new homes and remodeling of old ones was launched today by 27 dealers in building and home supplies and credit firms in the Mansfield area.

Asserting that a home built today affords from 25 to 40 per cent more value than 12 years ago, sponsors of the drive contend that increased activity in the building industry will improve business in Mansfield reduce the relief load by providing employment, and contribute to the civic betterment of the city.

"The most outstanding bargain in America today is a new home," will be the substance of a series of eight full-page advertisements which will appear in The News-Journal and throughout the nation within the next month.

The advertisements, the first of which appears today, will emphasize the lower financing of building costs, lower priced building materials, and modern building improvements which reduce the home maintenance cost.

Facts concerning home building costs brought out in this campaign reveal that the 1938 home makes the home of 10 or 12 years ago obsolete due to improvements and new developments, yet this new and modern home actually costs less to build. One reason given for this is new, lowest cost materials, such as ready made door frames, windows, kitchen and other cabinet assemblies, standard lumber and modern building

Noted Sales Expert Arrives For Opening of City Crusade

Dr George Allison, president of the Edison Electric Institute of New York City, arrived in Mansfield last night to remain here until after the "Sales Mean Jobs" campaign is launched Tuesday night.

Dr Allison, who heads one of the largest sales research groups of electric appliances in the world, was the speaker last night at Massillon when that city launched its Sales Mean Jobs crusade. He will speak Tuesday morning at the Madison theater when more than 1,000 retail sales people hold their pep meeting, and will give the principal address at the public pep meeting in Central park at 8 p. m. Tuesday, at which 10,000 persons are expected.

"The whole plan has gained greater proportions than we ever dreamed," Richard Fensch, general chairman, said today. "Mansfield is taking hold of this crusade against pessimism and indifference with real spirit. Sales classes are being conducted in stores, factories and wholesale concerns are interested, and increased sales are being reported even before the crusade banners have been hoisted.

The Mansfield Rapid Transit company today announced it would furnish free transportation downtown Tuesday from 7 to 8 p. m. Buses will leave the end of each line at 7:15 and 7:45.

In addition to Dr. Allison's talk, there will be music by the high school band and the "Three Rhythmettes."

HOROSCOPE

For Monday, Aug. 1.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a rather difficult day, with much to impede, thwart and confuse. Finances and credit may be involved, with the most promising situations coming through hard work and sound judgment, especially where the element of justice might be involved.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year of some difficulties and possible financial embarrassments in which industry, application and good judgment may save the day. Private affairs may offset such perplexing and disconcerting situations.

For Sunday, July 31.

Sunday's horoscope is a rather perplexing one, with many signs of a subtle, mysterious or intriguing nature transpiring in the private affairs, but signs for enterprise and activity in other affiliations. It is probable that there may be peculiar entanglements in relation to elders, possibly in a sentimental way or involving some subtle undercurrents.

Those whose birthday it is may be ready for a year of rather unusual, secret or singular adventures or experiences, in which elders seem to have importance. Intrigue, romance or mystery prevails, although the faculties and forces may be under high pressure for success and attainment in a business way. Move discreetly in all affairs.

Favors were tiny crocheted yellow baskets containing sachet and small blue forget-me-nots. Centerpieces of candelabra were used on the three bridge tables.

Bridge winners were Miss Kurrich and Miss Ruth Goldsmith. The bride-elect was presented with her gifts by Nancy Gore, who brought them into the garden on a small decorated wagon. The hostesses presented an electrical gift to Miss Kurrich.

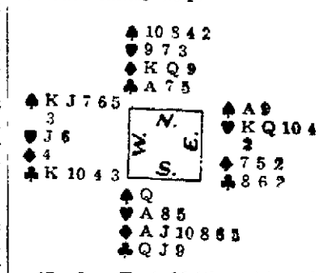
"The Authority on Authorities"

CREDIT NOT DESERVED

We have all seen players make brilliant take-a-chance bids and then get away unscathed because unsound defense delivers the successful contract to them. We have also seen such players depend on that bad defense when they really had a sounder method available which could attain the goal without such kindly help.



(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East passed and South began the auction with 1-Diamond on this deal. West overcalled with 1-Spade, North passed and East bid 2-Hearts. When South and West passed, North felt he could not let the opponents get away with a part score, so he injected a bid of three diamonds. When this came around to South, he decided that if West could not rebid spades and East was not able to support them, North possibly held a stopper in that suit. With six diamonds no doubt certain and the heart A, he gambled on a spade trick in the North hand and went to 3-No Trump.

The heart J was led and allowed to hold. This was followed by the heart 6 to the Q and a third heart by East to South's A. Six diamonds were next played and followed by the club Q, which West covered with the K and dummy with the A. The club J took the ninth trick.

After winning the heart Q on the second trick, East had a chance to set the contract if he switched to spades. But he never should have had the chance. South required a successful club finesse to make his contract, and so should have taken the first trick.

How should South play to make his contract of 4-Hearts after the lead of the club 7?

TWO WORLDS + + +

By MAUD McCURDY WELCH

READ THIS FIRST

Noel Shayne, wealthy society girl, is in love with Dr. Julian Paige, a serious-minded young physician who declares he will not permit himself to fall in love with Noel because of the contrasting worlds in which they live. Determined to show Julian she has stamina, Noel gives up a long trip with her aunt, turns over her income of $100,000 to her uncle who is in financial difficulties, buys her first outfit of inexpensive clothes and tells Julian she is going to find a job.

CHAPTER 3

AFTER SHE had paid off the servants at Stone Gate and attended to other bills, Noel had a little over a hundred dollars in her billfold. She smiled to think that it was almost the same amount her grandfather had had when he sailed to the United States to lay the foundation for the Shayne fortune.

Frankie, Noel's aunt, was a pretty frivolous woman of middle-age, with touched-up hair and a face from which all the lines had been carefully erased by skillful beauty technicians.

Just now she was in the hands of her maid, lying back among the cushions of the chaise longue, having a pedicure. Why a pedicure, Noel did not know. Perhaps merely to kill time. But Noel loved her aunt devotedly in spite of all her little affectations.

"Come in, darling," Frankie greeted her in her chirrupy voice. Then when she saw Noel wearing the cheap tweed suit and linen blouse, she gave a little scream. "What is it, darling? A masquerade?"

Noel lighted a cigaret and glanced at the maid. Frankie dismissed her at once and turned again to Noel, her eyes avid with curiosity. "Is it some kind of a game?"

Noel hesitated. She hadn't quite decided how to break the news to Frankie, who was quite capable of protesting strenuously whenever she disapproved of anything Noel proposed to do. But in spite of her little fluttery ways, Frankie did have an understanding nature.

So Noel decided to take the plunge. "If you had fallen in love with a man," she began, "and he practically told you that you were a parasite and a useless cumberer of the earth, what would you do?"

Frankie sat up on the chaise lounge, her faded blue eyes wide. "Darling, did some one actually dare—?" She stopped and drew her lips together in a straight line. "Well, I wouldn't let him get away with it. I'd make him take it back word for word."

"That's exactly what I'm going to do," Noel told her. "I'm going to stay right here, get a job and show him that I can make my own living as well as he can make his."

Frankie clasped her fragile hands. "But darling, it all sounds very romantic and thrilling, and I always did think you had some of your grandfather's stubbornness and spirit. But what on earth would I do at Aix-les-Bains without you. It would just be too tiresome for words," she finished plaintively.

"You can play five-suit bridge," Noel reminded.

Frankie brightened at that. She was passionately devoted to bridge. "Is it that too, too devastating young doctor, Julian Paige?" Frankie asked after a minute's thought.

Noel crushed out her cigaret and sank into a chair. "Yes, it is. I suppose I might as well admit the truth."

"He's precious," Frankie said with a smile. "And he's so different from all the other kind of men you have known. He has strength and—there's something really fine about him, I think," she stopped for a moment then added, "but, really, darling, he hadn't any right in the world to say things like that to you. It sounds a bit prigish, I'm afraid."

Noel shook her head. "No, he's not like that at all. He's just—" but her voice failed her. She couldn't tell anybody, not even Frankie, just how she felt about Julian Paige.

"Anyway," Frankie went on more complacently, "you'll soon show him he was all wrong, won't you?" Then she added, a note of anxiety coming back to her voice, "You won't be getting into any trouble, if I leave you here, will you, Noel?"

"Of course I won't," Noel answered blithely. "I'm going to have the time of my life."

"At least you won't be bored," Frankie said, her voice again plaintive. "If you only knew how dreadfully hard it is to keep from being bored these days, even at Monte Carlo."

"You'll meet your friends. You'll have a nice time," Noel tried to reassure her.

At last Frankie's qualms were set at rest. A few hours later, she and Noel bade each other an affectionate goodby. It was, of course, only a lark, Frankie told herself confidently. Noel had been restless of late. Perhaps it was time she fell seriously in love. And it wouldn't take long for her to win the man she wanted, for it was Frankie's opinion that there wasn't alive in the world a man who could remain indifferent to Noel's rose and golden beauty and her gay spirits. So she departed happily for California.

It was 10 o'clock that night before Noel was ready to start on the first lap of her adventure. Stone Gate was closed, the servants gone.

Noel took a taxi to the dingy rooming house on Court street where she had engaged a room under the name of Noel Doran. She gave the driver a dollar tip, then suddenly realized that since she was now a working girl, and entirely dependent on what she earned for her living, she had no right to be using taxicabs, much less tipping the driver dollar bills!

But she wouldn't forget again. She was beginning to learn already.

Once in her room, she hardly looked around the dingy quarters, but tumbled into the hard, rather lumpy bed, and soon fell asleep.

The next morning when she awakened and her eyes fell upon the discolored wall paper, the rusty grate, and the cheap wooden furniture, she opened her eyes wide, startled.

Then remembrance came back. She brushed back her curls and smiled, fighting back a feeling of homesickness for her dainty sunlit room at Stone Gate with the wide casement windows, the thick soft rugs, the taffeta-draped dressing table with its silver and gold appointments, the cold, green tiled bath with its sunken tub—

Then she remembered how bored and restless she had become with the things that money could buy. Today was he beginning of a new life. She was going to see it through. She had purposely arranged things so that even if she weakened and wanted to give up the idea, she couldn't do it. She would stick it out whether or no.

She put on the tweed suit and went out to get breakfast, a little past eight, delighted that she had awakened so early. Out in the crisp air, her enthusiasm returned with a bound, as she walked briskly along in the inexpensive oxfords, a little black velvet "beanie" on the back of her head.

She was wondering if she would see Julian today or tonight and laughed a little to herself at what he would say if he should see her new home.

She found a little cafe similar to the De Luxe, though not as inviting, and ate a good breakfast, surprised to find that bacon and scramble deggs with toast and coffee could taste so good.

Then she bought a morning paper, walked over to the small, deserted Front street park on the river, and sat down on a bench to study the ads. She did not notice that a man who had been standing near the register in the cafe, when she had taken a bill out of her well-filled billfold to get changed and pay for her breakfast, had unobtrusively followed her.

She was soon engrossed in the ads. There was a long list under Female Help Wanted, but nothing that fitted her peculiar abilities. In fact, she was at sea as to just the kind of work she could do, but thoroughly confident that there would be a place for her somewhere.

She found an ad—for a governess who must be able to teach French and music, which she thought might do. Luckily her "finishing school French" wasn't too bad. She tore out the ad, thinking happily that if she did see Julian tonight, she'd probably be able to tell him that she could already found a place she could fill.

When she picked up her bag, which she had left on the bench beside her, she found the clasp unfastened. Panic stricken she looked inside. The billfold was gone. Someone had cleverly removed it from her bag while she had been sitting there half covered up with newspapers. She had a little less than $4 in her change purse.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

My hand went up to my throat to stifle an astonished cry as I saw the passengers of the car which had just come through the wood road.

From Katie's lips came a promptly-stifled gasp, and I knew she was following out her "detecatuff correspondence school" instructions for "silence in any emergency." Dicky and I had read the phrase with ribald mirth one time when Katie proudly handed over the "course" for our inspection.

My mother-in-law's eyesight is failing with age, however, and I was not surprised to hear her whisper querulously:

"Do you recognize them, Margaret? There seems to be something familiar about them."

I put my lips to her ear.

"Yes. I know all of them," I whispered, "and we must go down immediately to welcome them."

"Who are they?" he demanded.

I had turned to make my way to the door, but her detaining hand was on my sleeve, and although I begrudged the time to answer her question, for I was wild to dash down the stairs, I knew I must satisfy her curiosity before going.

Queen With Them.

"The man is Harry Underwood, and Lillian is there, also, with the Princess Olina and her mother."

She drew a sharp breath of excitement.

"Queen Olga!" she whispered, and there was much awe in her voice.

Then she put her hand through the crook of my arm.

"Hurry!" she breathed, but a quickly-stifled cry from Katie halted us both.

"Look!"

My excitable little maid whispered the adjuration, and both my mother-in-law and I obeyed it, turning to the railing again.

"Dot poor vomans, dot qveen, she no can stand. She go down in vun heap before mens can stop her."

Fell In Heap.

I saw that she had spoken the truth. Harry Underwood, Lillian and the princess were bending over a huddled heap on the ground, and Olina's voice rang out tragically.

"Oh! Mother! Speak to me."

"Hush!" Lillian's sibilant whisper was peremptory. "Not another word till we get inside."

She turned her head, evidently in answer to a query from her husband, who was kneeling by the side of the stricken queen.

"Yes," she said. "Carry her into the dining room. There's a couch in there, the nearest one for now."

Dicky came around the corner of the house, and I guessed that he had been scouting for possible loiterers.

"All clear on this side," he said in low tones. "Ah, there, old Scout!" He clapped Harry Underwood affectionately on the shiulder. "Shall I give you a hand?"

Harry Accepts Offer.

"Please! On the other side!" and Dicky promptly moved to the other side of the inert heap which was the exiled queen of Transvania.

Dicky and Harry, war veterans both—Harry had been in the ambulance service—lifted the unconscious figure from the ground, and turned toward the open kitchen door with it. Just as they came into the lighted oblong which the kitchen door presented, I heard a low, sibilant whisper above me, "Now," and the next instant the soft ping of a bullet from a revolver equipped with a silencer.

THEATER

"Little Miss Broadway."

Little Miss Temple will swing her brief skirts over the Ohio screen the first half of the week. Her new picture, "Little Miss Broadway" opens at the midnight matinee tonight. Romance blossoms between George Murphy and Phyllis Brooks, with Edna Mae Oliver as the female dragon. The locale is an old actors' hotel in which the building is almost as down-at-the-heels as the old variety actors who stay there. Shirley Temple is the pet of the hotel, her parents having died several years before. This gives the starlet opportunity to sing and dance in her best manner. The supporting cast, headed by Jimmie Durante, has the names of several old-timers of the silent screen, among them El Brendel, Hank Mann, who was one of the first "Keystone Cops," Donald Meek, George Barbier and Heine Conklin.

"Professor Beware."

Already rated a hit and one of the funniest of the Lloyd comedies, "Professor Beware," comes to the Madison tomorrow for three days. This is Lloyd's first picture in more than two years, the first one since "The Milky Way." Following the advice of his wife who was his former leading woman, Mildred Davis, Lloyd decided to use considerable slap-stick comedy this time instead of his usual half-high-brow comedy. The story is that of a down and out archeologist in search of a job, and his jaunt across the country is filled with adventure, not to mention romance in the form of a pretty girl who is after a screen test. Phyllis Welch, Raymond Walburn, Lionel Stander, William Frawley and Sterling Halloway are in the cast.

"Double Trouble."

Booth Tarkington's well known boyhood character, Penrod, is the pivot around which "Penrod's Double Trouble" moves. The picture, a re-issue, will be the Majestic attraction tomorrow, with the Mauch twins, Billy and Bobby impersonating Penrod and his "double trouble." This is an exciting picture for boys, for it shows Penrod as a stowaway in a runaway balloon, alone and adrift in the clouds. How he manages to get out of this predicament and get back home in time to get the two double-dyed villains, makes exciting screen entertainment. A British film "3 On A Week-End," with Margaret Lockwood and John Lodge is the unusual story of two sweethearts on a week-end whose holiday is wrecked by the unseen presence of another man, whom neither know.

"Sally, Irene and Mary."

This old romantic comedy which once served as a dramatic vehicle for Joan Crawford, Constance Bennett and Sally O'Neill, has been streamlined, given music and dances, and a cast that has box office appeal. Alice Faye, Marjorie Weaver and Joan Davis are the three girls who wage their own battle for success on the Main Stem; then there is Fred Allen, Tony Martin, Jimmy Durante, Gregory Ratoff and Louise Hovick. With this musical romance at the Ritz is "Wise Girl" with Miriam Hopkins, Ray Milland, Walter Abel and Henry Stephenson. This tempestuous romance will be recalled as being between two natural enemies—a Park avenue butterfly and a penniless artist. But in the end, Miss Hopkins gets her man, after chasing him up several trees.

Still An Attraction.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" still has the power, after more than 75 years, to draw crowds. The Madge Kinsey Players last night played to almost a thousand persons at their tent theater on West Second street, on the third night of the "Uncle Tom" bill. They are presenting it as it was in the original, making no attempt to modernize it. It will be repeated again tonight. On Sunday the Players present "Lovers and Lunatics," a farce comedy, revolving around a formula for the elixir of life. A baby is mistaken for the professor who is believed to have taken the elixir and gone back to babyhood. Otto Imig plays the professor and Jack Irwin and Ellen Douglas have the romantic leads, while Madge Kinsey plays a character role.

OLD BUILDINGS TO BENEFIT, TOO

Building Program Provides for Improvements in Present City Grade Schools.

sanitation facilities—if you can apply the word "sanitary" to them. Toilets, drinking fountains and wash basins are typical of the first "modern conveniences" that immediately followed the galvanized wash tub for bathing purposes.

This is true of all buildings except Western avenue, Senior high and the new Woodland school, which have modern fixtures.

An item of $75,000 is provided in the building program for relocation of toilet rooms, and improvement of facilities.

At Bowman street, there would have to be a small addition to the main building, at Bushnell and West Fifth, new rooms would be equipped on the first and second floors. Prospect and Newman have well lighted, well ventilated basement rooms, and here only new equipment is needed.

At Carpenter, (West Fifth) facilities are more or less modern in the girls' rooms, but better lighting and ventilation is needed, and new equipment for the boys' room. New partitions and new equipment are planned for Brinkerhoff.

Extens ive Changes At Hedges.

More extensive changes are planned for Hedges school if the building program is approved at the election. At present there are 14 elementary grade rooms in the old building and two in the portable addition, one in the basement with eight junior high rooms in the 1911 annex.

Under the new plans, the junior high grades would go to John Simpson or Johnny Appleseed buildings and the 1911 annex would be used for elementary classes.

The old building is divided into three sections, facing Home avenue. The western wing would be made into a combination auditorium and gymnasim. The second floor would be torn out to provide height, the hall space would be used for a stage and small dressing rooms.

The auditorium floor space would be 48 by 60 feet, and which could be cleared of seats to provide gymnasium space. Directly across the front, or south, of the room an addition of 18 by 60 feet would be made to accommodate bleachers. The entire seating capacity would be about 600.

The entire building program would take about a year and the federal contract specifies that it be started by Jan. 1 1939, if the school bonds are approved.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

CRADLING

A LONG a steep hillside I saw a farmer cradling oats. He was a man of 70 years or so, with a kindly face behind a heavy white beard. I watched him swing that cradle through the thick, stalky straw with ease, as he let the scythe carry the weight of the cradle on the stubble. I watched him lay the swath with precision in straight lines up the hill, and stood by the border of the field until he returned.

"Quite hard work cutting grass that way," I said.

"Harder than it used to be for me," he answered. "Fifty years ago I could cradle all day long and go to see my gal at night . . . then start in next mornin' at daylight. Them was better days than now. I reckon you never did this kind of work."

I told him that I had, and he wagered me to prove it.

"If you go to the top without leaving any stalks standing I'll have my wife, Mary, cook you a chicken supper," he declared.

I was put on the spot. He whetted the scythe and handed it to me. I walked up to the standing grain and started swinging. How he sat upon the old rail fence and laughed as I blunderingly made the first six strokes. But when I had climbed up the farther end, so weary that I almost dropped, with sweat pouring from every pore, as though I had been in a shower, I looked back and saw some stalks still standing.

When I returned, the old man grasped my hand, and said we'd go to supper. He was a splendid sport.

Since the days when I cradled grain upon the hills I have seen the reaper cut the crop, lay it on a platform and place it regularly in bundles to be bound by hand; the self-binder, a wonderful invention; the monstrous header in the western fields, pushed ahead by sixteen horses; and finally, the present-day combine, drawn by tractors through the farmers' fields.

Mansfield Company Announces Completion of $250,000 Expansion Program.

for Mansfield, the newly installed equipment could be changed over with few modifications.

Hirsch explained that in order to cut-in the new exchange, it was necessary for the company to reconstruct the entire Woodland territory and for that reason extensive underground improvements have been under way in that area for the past year. This eliminates to a minimum the number of poles and aerial cable and wires which have given way to the modern trend in telephone engineering, Hirsch said.

The cables connecting the main exchange to Woodland are located in underground conduit, reducing service interruptions to a minimum, he added.

He said the cut-over would effect all subscribers of the company now in the service located south of Cline avenue between South Main street and Marion avenue. The work will take about two weeks.

The new cable construction links the Woodland exchange with the central office where an addition to the rear of the bullidng has been completed at the cost of $15,000. The addition houses the wire chief's office and the plant accounting department.

Coincidental with the cut-over the company also will issue its 1938 directory which will carry the number changes that have been made in some sections of Woodland, Wittemire said.

"During the cut-over an added force of operators will be on duty to assist subscribers in completing their calls," Wittemire added.

EARLY PLOWING BOOSTS WHEAT YIELD, CLAIM

Ohio Experiment Station Says Output Increased 3 Bushels to an Acre.

Plowing stubble land the first of August has increased the yield of wheat about three bushels per acre over plowing in mid-September as an 11-year average, according to L. E. Thatcher, associate agronomist at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment station.

This result has been obtained in an experiment at Wooster in which stubble land has been plowed and disked for wheat at different times from August 1 until mid-September.

Disking the land three times between August 1 and Sept. 15 has resulted in a loss of four bushels of wheat per acreas compared with mid-August plowing.

Benefits Listed.

Thatcher states that early plowing for wheat is favorable because (a) it removes weeds which, if permitted to grow, will use up soil moisture and plant food; (b) it stimulates the decay of organic matter in the soil, liberating the nitrogen of the organic matter protein as nitrate nitrogen, a form in which it is available to the growing wheat crop; and (c) it results in a better settled seed-bed for the wheat.

The soil on the experiment station farm at Wooster where these tests were conducted is classified as Wooster silt loam, a soil that packs and crusts easily. Plowing loosens up the soil and admits air, which is necessary to organic matter decay. On naturally loose, "self-mulching" soils the need for aeration may not be so pronounced but early plowing of such soils is helpful in weed control.

Some inquiries have been received at the station asking about the advisability of sowing some legume in wheat to be plowed down for the second wheat crop.

If this is done, plowing must be delayed in order to permit the cover crop to make good growth after wheat harvest. It is questionable if the benefit of such a cover crop will make up for the loss resulting from late plowing.

These 16 "EXTRAS" for Better Living

A 1938 Home offers greater value than at any time in history

...and actually costs less than the 1926 house

DID you know that the greatest single BARGAIN—the most outstanding VALUE in America today is a new home? Did you know that the 1938 house, like the modern automobile, makes the 1926 model practically obsolete due to improvements and new developments?

"John, darling, it's our Home! WE OWN IT!"

The thrill of a lifetime is when you build or buy a house But it's more than that You've just found the place where you want to live permanently It's all yours. You may never have to move again Nobody can ever raise your rent. You have purchased a share in the community, schools for your children, friends, social life, a new kind of interest and joy in a lawn or flowers, or a workshop in the basement. You have found a HOME.

You would expect that, with such improvements and scientific achievements, you would pay more for the greater livability, durability, charm and ease of buying.

But, actually, the 1938 home costs less than the home of 1926. One reason is new, lower cost materials, many of which are actually built at the factory—ready-made door frames, windows, kitchen and other cabinet assemblies, standard lumber, modern building products of many kinds that come in planned units for speedy, labor-saving assembly. In short, today's building materials dollar stretches further

And here—in detail—is why you get 25% to 40% more real value than at any time in history.

Your house will be better designed. Great strides have been made by the better architects and builders of the country in designing homes to eliminate waste space and to make them more attractive.

Your house will be better built. It must pass Federal Housing Administration inspection for quality specifications, sound principles of construction.

Your house will be more comfortable. Insulation, improved heating plants, air conditioning have given the modern house comfort that was never dreamed of ten years ago.

Your house will be more economical. Many materials have been developed which have eliminated items of expensive upkeep that were looked upon as a necessary evil of home ownership just a few years ago.

Your house will be more efficient. It will have better kitchen planning, with new and improved labor-saving devices, streamlined, built-in fixtures that remove the word drudgery from housekeeping, and better room arrangement that eliminates many of the errors of construction that meant added burdens to the housewife.

Your house will be safer. Fire-resistant insulation and building materials, healthier atmospheric conditions; all help minimize the hazards of the past . . . and with all this—

Your house will be far easier to finance. There never was a time when it was so easy to FINANCE a home. Long-term, low-cost Federal Housing Administration financing makes it possible to pay for a new home out of a modest-size income, with low monthly payments like rent, on a plan that gives you full ownership of the house in 20 years—and at a cost that in many cases is as much as 85% less than former financing costs.

Study the 16 specific points of improvement in the illustration. Go over them, point by point. Confirm these new developments and features with any of the companies listed in this advertisement. And you will say with us that the 1938 house is the most outstanding value in America today. Your architect, builder, realtor, lumber or building materials dealer will be glad to offer information and literature to verify the fact that you get more house for your money today

Hank's After Ruth's Record

Ahead of Babe's 1927 Pace When He Hit 60.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Hank Greenberg, the Detroit Tigers' first baseman, today was hot on the trail of Babe Ruth's home run record. With 35 homers to his credit, Greenberg was ahead of Ruth's 1927 pace when he hit 60 homers.

Hank hit two homers, Nos. 34 and 35, as Detroit triumphed over the Athletics, 9-2, yesterday. The first came with the bases empty, the second with two men on. If he keeps up his pace for the rest of the season, he will shatter what many critics have said was baseball's hardest record to break.

The New York Yankees held on to its one game lead over the Cleveland Indians by knocking off the Chicago White Sox, 4-3. The Yankees put on a two-run rally in the ninth to break a 2-2 deadlock.

In the National league, Philadelphia went 12 innings to defeat the Chicago Cubs, 5-4. The Phils accomplished their victory with two out. In the 12th when Bill Jurges let a grounder get through him, permitting the winning run to cross the plate.

The Boston Bees defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 2-1. Johnny Lanning was deprived of a shutout in the ninth when the Cards tallied their run on doubles by Ducky Medwick and Don Gutteridge. The Giants came to life and defeated Cincinnati Reds, 5-4. The Pirates defeated the Dodgers 7-6, for their third victory in a row to remain five games in front in the National league race.

DALE McKINLEY YIELDS SIX HITS, BUT LOSES, 5-1

Dale McKinley gave up only six hits, but he made the mistake of permitting the Keg House Beers to bunch them. In the game played at Crestline, the Beers won over the Musille Cigars, 5 to 1. The Cigars also collected six hits, with Boyd getting a pair. Ganni led the winners with two hits.

Mansfield Re-Established As Harness Racing Center

Fairground Meeting Comes to Close With Mansfield Horses Dominating Two of Five Races.

MANSFIELD has regained the position it once held in Ohio racing circles.

The most successful harness meeting ever sponsored in conjunction with the Richland county fair came to a close yesterday before a crowd estimated at 5,000.

Not only did the fair races draw record crowds, but the most pretentious collection of horses ever to appear at the fairground.

The success of the early fair from a racing standpoint has again established harness racing in this locality, and prospects point to even a more successful meeting next year as virtually all of the stables represented this week will return, B. F. Huston, superintendent of speed, has assured.

MANSFIELD-OWNED horses dominated the last day of the races yesterday.

Grace Crispin, owned by Roy Dickson of Mansfield, and King Vagabond, carrying the colors of the Nail-Dickson stable, won their races in straight heats.

Grace Crispin, champion green trotter of 1937 with a competitive mark of 2:02¼, won the 2:21 trot without apparent effort. The fast-stepping Mansfield horse won both heats, with My Boy and W. J. Volo challenging seriously only late in the second heat. The latter horse was second in both heats.

King Vagabond, a bay by Gaylworthy, breezed through to victory in straight heats in the 2:17 trot, negotiating the second mile in 2:08¾. Philman and General Butts put on an interesting race for second place in the second heat, with the former guided by Gabe Carthal coming through.

In the third race in the day's program, Bobbie Crispin, owned by the Wise Bros., of Canton, piloted by Bob Placico, won the 2:16 class pace. After finishing a close second in the first heat, the chestnut horse came through to win the second and last heat in 2:07½ to win the pace. Peter Patch, reined by Hump Morrison, made a sensational finish to win the first heat, but its time was somewhat slower than Bobbie Crispin's.

* * * *

JOEL, a black gelding, owned by the Schaffner & Price stable of Butler, Pa., responded to the command of Bob Seeley to win the 2:12 trot in straight heats. The gelding did the last turn in 2:08½. Plaxico's Bunter Hanover took second in the two heats

Single Sis, owned by the McClay Bros., of Newark and driven by Vallery, won the 2:11 pace in the good time of 2:08 and 2:07¾ in straight heats. Colonel Drew of the Biery farm, Butler, Pa., was second in both heats, with Delvin Miller at the reins

Liberty Park Can Tighten Race Monday

Play at Prospect Park in City League Tussle.

Liberty park can do a lot of damage Monday when they meet the front-running Prospect park club in a City Class A softball league game at Prospect park.

The Liberty team is the present occupant of the basement, but it is not satisfied to remain there, and will attempt to do things about it Monday.

The title battle is tight enough the way it is at present, but a victory for the Liberties next week can make it even tighter.

If the Liberty team can stop the rampaging Prospectors Monday, it will drop the winner of the North park-Johns park tilt into a tie with Prospect for the league lead.

Liberty can crawl into a tie for third place with the losing team in the Johns park game.

Beers Two-Up On Cab Team

Win 'Postponed' Slugfest 13 to 7, at Johns Park.

Despite the announcement of a postponement, the Beeber-Ross Beers and DeLuxe Cabs got together on the softball field at Johns park yesterday, and the Beermen won, 13 to 5, to go two-up in the seven-game series.

The postponement announced yesterday morning was made without authority, it was disclosed today.

The Beeber-Ross team scored 10 runs in the first three innings to take an unsurmountable lead, while Fullager suffered only one bad frame. The Cabs scored four in the second. Fullager gave up his six hits. Bill Ross hit a home run for the Beers.

Errors figured prominently in the Beers' scoring. They tallied five times in the first inning with the help of only one hit. The Cabs played without the services of Stickler, Frisbee, Weber and Valentine.

The teams entered in the tournament are the cream of north central Ohio, and the type of ball they display should be of a high quality.

The tournament winner will qualify for the state elimination to be held in Elyria in August.

Allen Is Not Only a Pitcher, But Also a Dangerous Hitter

CLEVELAND—(UP)—Johnny Allen, the fiery right-handed mound ace of the Cleveland Indians, is generally recognized as the outstanding pitcher in the majors today. That distinction alone doesn't satisfy the long-jawed North Carolinan however, for he desires to become a batsman that opposing hurlers fear.

When the All-Star game was played at Cincinnati early this month Allen was the only player on the roster of either team who went to the trouble to bring along his own bats. Because of this passionate love of base hits therefore it is easy to understand why Allen prized his 13th victory of the season more than any other he has scored.

Allen toyed with the Washington Senators here yesterday to gain an easy 12 to 4 triumph. The big right-hander pitched shutout ball for five innings and did not allow a run until he had a comfortable 8 to 0 lead.

Allen, who was on the sidelines for two weeks during the Tribe's recent eastern trip, signalized his return to top form by giving the Senators only eight hits. He struck out four men and walked three.

Cleveland hammered Elon Hogsett and Harry Kelley for 15 hits and one of the chief sluggers was Allen. He opened the third inning with a double and then in the fourth round with Ken Keltner and Frankie Pytlak on base the temperamental hurler homered into the left field bleachers. Allen scored twice himself and drove in three runs.

The Indians put across two runs in the third, added five in the fourth, one in the fifth and four more in the sixth. Washington made one run in each of the last four innings.

Bruce Campbell and Hal Trosky with three hits each set the pace for the Indians' attack. Two of Trosky's hits were home runs. Allen, Pytlak, Jeff Heath and Sammy Hale each banger out two safeties.

Despite the victory the Indians remained one game to the rear of the New York Yanks who edged Chicago.

Mel Harder was slated to pitch the second game of the series for the Indians, with Kendall Chase, youthful southpaw, opposing him.

'Slugger' Allen Aspires To Pinch Hitting Roles.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—This versatile fellow of the diamond, Fireball Johnny Allen, aspires to become a pinch hitter. Allen not only hurled the Tribe to a victory over the Washington Senators yesterday but he lined out a home run and double to contribute three runs to the happy side of a 12-4 score. "Guess I'm just a natural slugger," remarked the mound ace smilingly when congratulations were showered upon him. "I'm becoming more dangerous at the plate every day."

Legion Plays League Leader

Geiger to Start on Mound Against Jackson Club.

All that the American Legion club has to do Sunday to enhance its Central Ohio semi-pro league title opportunities is trim Jackson.

The Legionnaires meet the southern Ohio club on the Jackson diamond, and Manager Dewey Durant's men really have a job cut out for themselves.

Jackson not only leads the second half race, but it sports a winning streak of six games. In fact, Jackson has not been beaten since it replaced Marion mid-way in the first half.

Jackson has beaten every one of the major contenders to date, and if it can take Mansfield into camp Sunday, it is a virtual cinch to clinch the second half honors.

Durant plans to use Aid Geiger on the mound Sunday in an attempt to stop the Jacksonites.

Geiger has hurled magnificent ball in virtually every appearance, and he may be returned the winner if his teammates can get him a few runs.

The rest of the Mansfield team's lineup will remain intact. Durant said.

Rex Billiards Invade Salem

STOCKS STAGE COMEBACK ON SMALL VOLUME

Steels, Motors Point Way for General Recovery; List Up Point or More.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Steels and motors pointed the way for a selective stock market recovery today and favored issues pushed up fractions to a point or more at the best.

The come-back was accomplished on a relatively small volume, however, even for a Saturday session. Transfers were around 350,000 shares.

Many traders apparently felt the early pressure of dog-day apathy and got a head start on their week-end holiday.

While leading stocks received a fair share of speculative attention, low priced issued were again the liveliest, most adding small fractions to recent improvement.

Business news, on the whole, was still the main bolstering share influence. But some commentators thought the market might yet be called upon to test the lows of the past week and, while sentiment had lost little of its optimistic tinge, a more pronounced strain of caution was evident in commission houses.

Buying support was accorded U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Briggs Mfg., Yellow Truck, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, Sears Roebuck, National Cash Register, Commercial Solvents, Coca-Cola, Richfield Oil, Childs Co., American Telephone and Douglas Aircraft. Bonds and commodities were narrowly mixed.

combe "broadcasting" to the audience what was transpiring.

Meanwhile fair board officials pointed to a total estimated attendance of 37,000 for the three days of the fair and expressed the belief today that the fair was "out of the rut" and headed for bigger years.

The board's hope for a crowd of 8,000 on closing day was more than fulfilled yesterday and last night when an estimated 10,000 packed the grounds. The crowd estimate for the opening day, Wednesday, was 12,000 and for Thursday 15,000.

Today presented a busy scene of activity at the fairground. Tents were being folded, amusements, rides, were being dismantled, livestock and harness race horses were being moved out after the three-day stand. All will be out by Monday.

Fair officials were checking receipts against expenditures and were reasonably certain that accounts will balance at least somewhere near even, with possibilities of a profit.

The exact financial status of the 1938 exposition will not be known for some weeks yet since all unpaid bills will not be received until later, C. C. Hout, secretary, said.

Children of the Children's Home were guests of the fair management yesterday. They were given rides on various amusement devices by the R. A. Jolley company of Bucyrus.

At last night's fair program, a big crown turned out for another performance of the Gus Sun vaudeville revue. The fair closed with a fireworks display.

One Last Word About School Bond Issue and Why Mansfield Needs It

—By JANE WILLIAMS

EVERYTHING has been said for and against the school bond issue that there is to say. It has been cussed and discussed; represented and misrepresented. So I might just as well get in and pitch a bit myself.

The proposition that will come before the voters of Mansfield next Tuesday is this: If we'll raise the money to build one new junior high school building, the federal government will give us another one like it. If we can scrape up $550,000 for a new building and installing new sanitary equipment in all of the old elementary buildings, the government will build us a brand new building for $450,000. Just like that.

I'm so sick of taxes, new taxes, increased taxes, that I actually gag every time they're mentioned. So do you. If you own property. But let's take a look at the proposition and talk about it in your language and mine.

MANSFIELD, they say, (but I looked it up myself just to be sure) has the lowest tax rate of any city its size in the state. That's fine—we want to keep it that way. Low tax rates draw industries to any city, and industries give employment.

BUT—there are certain things we must do to keep up our property. You know yourself it isn't good business to let your place get so run down that it takes more than you possess to fix it up. Mansfield is in just that position with its schools. In order to keep our tax rate down we've allowed our school buildings to go to pot and we haven't expanded our building program fast enough to keep up with the growth of the town. No one who is familiar with facts disputes that.

So then we HAVE to do something about the school buildings either now or in a few years. If we do it NOW we get it at half price; if we wait a few years, probably the federal government will have stopped its mad spending—or gone broke—and we won't get any help from that source.

The whole thing revolves itself into this simple question, then: do we do it now and pay 83 cents on every $1,000 property valuation, or do we wait a few years and pay $1.66 for exactly the same thing?

AND WHILE we're on the subject of that 83 cents, let's get it straight, once and for all. So many people misunderstand about it—and who can blame them?—because tax rates and mills are just so much Greek to the average individual, who only knows that he pays them.

If the $550,000 school bond issue passes, it will cost you exactly 83 CENTS a thousand dollars, and NOT $8.83. If your home is appraised at $3,000, the new schools will cost you $2.49 a year, or $1.25 every six months. If your home is appraised at $8,000 it will cost you $6.64 a year or $3.32 every tax period. And that goes on for 20 years.

BUT only a little more than half of that is an increase over what you are paying now. Because 40 cents a thousand that you are paying now is finished this year. So that starting with the 1940 payments, the new school bond issue will cost you only half of the figures I've given you here, above what you paid this year.

If that isn't clear, call me up. Or call W. L. Miller or Harold Arlin—they're only working 18 hours a day on the bond issue now anyway.

ONE MAN said to me: "But don't kid yourself that we will get that money from the federal government for nothing—we're going to pay taxes for that and pay plenty."

That's right. We are. BUT WE'LL PAY FOR FEDERAL SPENDING WHETHER OR NOT WE VOTE FOR NEW SCHOOLS. And don't you forget it. Our only chance to get any of that money back is to spend some at home, and ask the government to match it.

And don't confuse our school bond issue with the relief bond issues which will cost you THREE DOLLARS a year per thousand—$9 for a $3,000 home and $24 for an $8,000 home. They both come before the voters at the same time. The one is to better the town, provide for the future and gives work to 250 men for a year, thus taking them off the relief rolls; the other, the relief bond issue, is a so-called "emergency" operating fund, which means that if it isn't needed for relief it may be used for other city or township expenses.

But in the last analysis, it's up to you. Get your information straight, think it out carefully for yourself and your city—and then vote the way you think best.

ADD THOUGHTS On Bond Issue: The bond issue calls for $550,000 to be paid off in the next 20 years. In the last TEN years we've paid off $865,000 in school bonds, and this period included seven of the leanest years in your generation. If we could pay two-thirds of a million in 10 years, can't we pay off a half million in 20 years, without too much of a pinch?

'Absurd', Mussolini Says In Reply To Pope

FASCISM NEVER IMITATES, HE TELLS STUDENTS

Answers Prelate's Charge That Italy Follows Nazi Racial Policies.

FORLI, Italy—Premier Mussolini replied personally today to Pope Pius' assertion that the new Fascist race policy was adopted in imitation of Nazi Germany.

Addressing a group of Fascist party officials in camp at Forli, Mussolini asserted, "You know and everyone knows that also on the question of race we will shoot straight.

"To say that Fascism has imitated anyone or anything is simply absurd."

L'Osservatore Romano, Vatican newspaper yesterday quoted the pope in discussing the race doctrine as asking, "Why in the world Italy unfortunately felt the need to imitate Germany?"

Talks To Students.

The pope was addressing missionary students of 37 nationalities who visited him Thursday at his summer residence, Castel Gandolfo.

Mussolini, who left Rome yesterday for his summer place at Rocco Della Caminate, arose early today to make his reply.

At 8 a. m. he went to camp and made an inspection. Then he addressed the Fascist officials.

The two sentences from his talk referring to imitation of Nazi Germany were distributed by Stefani, official Italian news agency. No further quotes were made available.

Mussolini's remarks were the sharpest he had used in years toward the vatican and caused a new uneasiness among Catholics over whether the present trend of Fascism was heading toward a break with the church.

Before speaking to the officials, il duce reviewed a parade of Fascist youths at the camp. They performed the Roman step, or Italian version of the goosestep, which is held by many also to have been borrowed from Germany but which Fascists insist really is of ancient Roman origin

Up and Down THE STREET

There's an interesting display of ceramic sculpture in the case at the Public library this week. It is the work of WPA art students in Cleveland and was displayed in the Cleveland Museum of Fine Arts during the May show. The pottery is in colors and the subjects are mostly from the classics, done in modernistic style. One is "Midsummer Night's Dream" in which Bottom, wearing the ass's head makes love to the Shakespearean heroine.

Just as the French revolution had its "Marseillaise," the Civil war its "Marching Through Georgia," and the World war its "Tipperary," so the Mansfield campaign against depression and pessimism will have its fighting song. It will be a parody on "Whistle While You Work," and there will be one parody for sales people and one for the public. The first one will be introduced at the mass meeting of sales people at the Madison theater Tuesday morning, while the other will be printed and passed out to every one at the pep meeting at Central park Tuesday night. The merry, exciting tune of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs has been adapted to Mansfield's "Sales Mean Jobs" campaign by Osborne Meese.

Russell K. Erdenberger, deputy county treasurer, is another contender for the crown of champion hollyhock grower in the Mansfield area. At his home on R. D. 4, Erdenberger has nearly a dozen flowers more than eight feet tall and the highest measures 10 feet, six inches. Out on Sheridan avenue they grow even taller. Earl L. Penney reports that one of his hollyhocks is 11 feet high and still growing.

Maybe dogs have nine lives too. This morning an automobile struck one of those roving mongrels at the corner of Vennum and Marion avenues and the animal fell to the pavement, apparently dead. Several minutes later a nearby resident took the dog by the hind legs and dragged it to the curb. Suddenly this sturdy canine shook itself, jumped to its feet and ran away with nothing more than a slight limp. Reports of his death were slightly exaggerated, he probably decided.

WPA activities reach out to cover almost every imaginable phase of work, but Miss Lucille Lorow and Miss Hazel Manner, Mansfield school teachers attending New York City university, think they have discovered the "last word." While walking through Washington Square in the metropolis, they saw an elderly man, toting a sack of fleecy white cotton on his back, and throwing bits of it to the wind. When they made inquiries about his peculiar conduct, they were told that he was a WPA worker whose sole job was to throw the cotton around for birds to use in building their nests.

Mansfield police officers whose day off happens to fall on Wednesday next week are out of luck, for Chief Meade K. Bates has ordered all men on duty that day to handle the crowd that is expected for the second annual Soap Box derby—the great kid classic. But none of the officers object to giving up their day because they admit that they'd be at the Sturges avenue "track" anyway.

UNION REPLIES TO GOVERNOR'S LABOR ATTACK

Sawyer Calls for Honesty in Government as Hecklers Plague Rival Again.

(By Associated Press)

Gov. Martin L. Davey's bitter third-term campaign assaults against John L. Lewis and the committee for Industrial organization were met today by a statement in a Lewis publication that "if organized labor in Ohio does its duty Davey will not get a dozen votes."

At Cincinnati, meantime, Charles Sawyer, Davey's opponent for the Democratic nomination, called for "rigid honesty" and "application of business" in the state's social security work.

Quotes Davey Speech.

The United Mine Workers' Journal, official publication of Lewis' union, asserted at Washington that "labor in Ohio has taken Governor Davey's measure and his political grave is yawning for him."

Quoting Davey as saying during a recent speech that Lewis sought to "create a civil war" in last summer's steel strike, the paper declared:

"That statement is not true, and the governor knew it wasn't true when he made it. John L. Lewis does not deal in civil war."

Davey continued his broadsides against the CIO and Lewis, nevertheless, and ran into more boos in Massill on as he addressed a large crowd.

'At least I'm willing to take it, and I can take more than you," he told the booers. "I'll bet a lot of you fellows are communists. I'll ring up so many votes that it will be heard from coast to coast how John L. Lewis and his communist allies were beaten in Ohio."

Sawyer said in a radio broadcast last night that Ohio now has $70,000,000 "piled up" in Washington under provisions of the industrial unemployment act. Distribution of the money will begin early next year.

"I do not need to say that when that date arrives the problem of distributing these funds will be extremely serious and will call for the highest type of executive and administrative ability," Sawyer asserted. "The first principle which we must lay down is that the distribution must be made with the utmost impartiality and honesty."

CUTS RIBBON AT BELLVILLE SPAN

4-Year-Old Girl Starts Off Dedication Ceremonies for Bridge Today.

Four-year-old Charlene Willson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. K. M. Willson of Bellville, will cut a ribbon across the new Bellville bridge over the Clearfork creek this afternoon and officially dedicate the $47,000 structure, completed just a month ago.

Congressman William A. Ashbrook will make the dedication address, and a number of state highway and county officials are scheduled to speak briefly.

The dedication program at the bridge, scheduled for 2 p. m., will follow a parade from Bellville's public square to the bridge at the north corporation limits of the village. The Bellville school band will head the parade which will be made up of state highway officials, county and village officials and residents of Bellville who helped in the campaign for the bridge.

Mayor Thomas Ziegler of Bellville, A. A. Shafer, Bellville funeral director, and Ralph C. Lutz, Lexington, Richland county representative to the general assembly, will be in charge of the dedication ceremonies. Boyd Wierman, state highway engineer, is in charge of the highway department's contribution to the program.

A baseball game between Bellville and Lexington teams will follow the dedication program at 3:30 p. m.

MILLERS OUTNUMBER SMITHS BY 7 IN NEW TELEPHONE DIRECTORY

There are more Millers in Mansfield than persons with any other name if the 1938 edition of the Mansfield Telephone company directory can be taken as a criterion.

The new directories, which will be delivered to subscribers Monday, show that the Millers number 97 while the always numerous Smiths are a close second with 92.

The annual most numerous names contest from then on isn't even close. The Davises are third in line with 41; the Browns have 39; next come the Fishers with 36, the Williams with 34, the Hoffmans, Snyders and Taylors with 30 each, while the "proverbial Jones family" stands next with 28. There are 25 Beers, 24 Moores, 22 Hoovers, and 22 Scotts.

The new directory, the thirty-seventh annual edition published by the company which was organized in 1901, lists approximately 15,000 telephones in the Mansfield district, practically the same number as last year. This includes Adario, Bellville, Butler, Lexington, Shiloh.

The new book, containing 156 pages, the same as last year, is bound in blue and will replace the directory that was issued last September. The new edition lists three changes in officers. The board of directors has been reduced to 13 with the death last December of Frank B. Black while Mrs. Ada Ford succeeds Hoyt Ford as vice presidena of the firm. Milo Hieber, former business manager has succeeded A. R. Murphy, who retired, as commercial superintendent.

FAIR ENOUGH!

If We Get Into Another War, We Will Bomb Civilians and Hospitals

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Barbarous it may be of the Spanish rebels and the Japanese to bomb cities, killing women and children in the process, but if the United States ever gets into another war the American aviation will do the same thing. The planes will bomb the enemy's cities and towns without regard for the civilians and the artillery will shell any objectives within range whose destruction seems to be worth the price of the ammunition. The artillery will knock the steeples off churches overlooking the American positions because the enemy will be a hypocritical lot who will not fail to use the steeples for observation posts

The enemy will knock over our steeples, too, and that will be desecration, because our soldiers, of course, will have proudly refrained from posting observers in them But yes

Our aviation will not start the game of bombarding civilian populations. The enemy will start that. He will bombard big cities claiming that these are military objectives merely because they contain valuable ships docks munition plants and military stores and factories In aiming at them he will use the principle of the shotgun, scattering his bombs over wide areas from great heights, most of which naturally will go wide of the intended marks and land on hospitals, orphanages and tenements. But we will know very well that he is using the military objectives as an excuse for his barbarism and in time will be compelled to use his own methods against his own people.

We will bomb hospitals occasionally, too but only because the enemy, cynical and cunning, will spot them close by his dumps of ammunition, or right alongside his important railroad junctions, where troops, supplies and guns are switching. He will do this deliberately in order to put us on a spot, knowing that it will be impossible to shoot at these legitimate targets without hitting his sick and wounded.

Well, he just can't get away with that, and if he is so vicious as to try it, the best thing to do will be to fight him toneat style in the belief that the only way to minimize and end the suffering is to give him the works at every opportunity. He will put out photographs of his charred hospitals with fescues poking among the ruins to show his own people and the neutrals of the world what beasts we are.

He will attack our hospitals too, and that will be stupid and savage torture of the helpless but he will be cunning enough to claim that he was aiming at military stores. That will be too thin for belief, but we will call him a liar, pointing out that these hospitals are not that close to his target. But he will say the intensity of our anti-aircraft fire kept his ships so high that they had to sacrifice accuracy for safety. He will say that it is up to us to move the hospitals or ease up on the anti-aircraft fire

In a fight with such an enemy a decent nation is hopelessly handicapped in attempting to observe the niceties of war The sooner he is crushed the better and he the monster will be telling the poor dupes of his population the same about us.

She Sees Orchids At Price Levels All Can Afford

NEW YORK—(AP)—Wooing with orchids soon may be within the price reach of everybody.

That's what Mildred Johnson said today as she packed her bags for a trip to Bogata, Colombia, where she expects to arrange for regular air shipments to U. S. of the delicate flowers.

The South American blooms, Miss Johnson said, may be had almost for the picking. The principal cost will be import duties, but even so, she said, every lover ought to be able to afford an orchid—or a dozen. A single orchid now costs one to five dollars.

Miss Johnson, a veteran in the field of "air shopping," hopes to develop further a thriving air commerce between Bogota and New York—a 24-hour flight.

More Home for Less Money Now.

WHAT is the most universal of human aspirations? This may be a debatable question, but without doubt the answer of many would be, "To own a home of our own."

Mansfield has reason to be proud of its large percentage of home-owning citizens—and of the realization that it is the ambition of many others to build a home here as soon as they are financially able to do so.

All of which makes especially interesting the revelation that, from the standpoint of costs, this is a particularly good year in which to build a home.

It is being pointed out, for instance, that today's home-building dollar buys from 25 to 40 per cent more home than it would have ten or twelve years ago; that building materials, fixtures and equipment average nearly 10 per cent less than in 1926 and that many of the most important materials going into a new house or modernization job are from 20 to 25 per cent less.

Then there is the further advantage that present-day home building makes available improvements and developments undreamed of ten years ago, also that the prospective home-builder now has access to financing plans under which responsible persons can secure a loan on terms that should not be burdensome, the monthly payments on which would be little, if any, more than rent.

During the past ten years many Mansfielders have become owners of lots, purchased with a view to building later. It appears that now is the time for action in the matter of home-building—the time to make a dream come true.

Why Take Worthless Checks?

JUST why at least an occasional business man continues to be taken in by passers of worthless checks is hard to understand.

This is an old form of swindle in which there are many variations, but the fact remains that a check is only a very ordinary piece of paper that has absolutely no value unless there is money in the bank to make it good.

When a stranger presents a check in payment for merchandise he has no right to expect that it will be accepted until he identifies himself and establishes his credit. In reality, no honest, intelligent person is likely to attempt to cash a check, or offer one to a stranger, in payment for merchandise, without submitting satisfactory references of credit.

A check is worth no more than the reliability of the person who presents it.

Early Blockhouse Was First School.

SCHOOLING was regarded as highly important back a hundred and thirty years ago—when Mansfield was being hewn from the wilderness.

One of the early blockhouses on the public square was used as the first school house.

In Graham's history of Richland county, issued in 1880, it was said: "Many of the best citizens of Mansfield put their shoulders to the wheel, and kept them there, until the schools of this city have been pushed to the front rank of the public schools of the state."

At another place in the same history it is said: "Under the management of the present very efficient superintendent, Mr. John Simpson, these schools have attained a high degree of excellence and are not surpassed by any others in the state."

There is no reason to believe that Mansfield people of today are less interested in their schools than were the earlier residents of this community, or any less anxious to again put our schools in the "front rank among public schools of the state."

Opportunity to express this interest, and to assure restoration of a creditable standing to Mansfield's public schools, will be given a week from next Tuesday by voting in favor of the $550,000 school bond proposal.

Border Squabbles.

RUSSIA and Japan seem to have reached the stage of two neighbors with a permanent grudge, standing on opposite sides of their boundary and calling each other names.

The latest altercation takes the form of a real estate row. The Japanese government charges that a hill occupied by Russian troops overlooking a lake on the border between Manchoukuo and eastern Siberia, near the Korean border, belongs to Japan. The Russian government, speaking through hard-hitting Maxim Litvinoff, interposes vigorous objection. So the press in Tokyo and Moscow gets excited, and the Japanese talk war.

Just a year ago they had a similar squabble about an island in the Amur river. It looks to a distant observer as if both Japan and Russia have plenty of hills and islands, and also plenty of troubles at home.

Car Insurance Favored.

ONLY one-fourth of the automobiles on the road in this country are insured against damage they may do to life and property. It means about 4,000,000. A survey of public opinion indicates that the public is very much dissatisfied with the situation. The people vote about six to one for compulsory accident insurance. Car owners, who will have to pay the insurance are almost as much in favor of the reform as other people.

It may be assumed, from the strength of this vote, that universal auto insurance will come soon.

Headline: "Survey shows 70 per cent of the people are sensible." Then 30 per cent can certainly make a lot of noise.

A California biologist is said to have "invented" an entirely new insect—which sounds quite Californiaesque.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Every stalk of corn is a throbbing earache for the department of agriculture these days. Here's why:

If the crop is as large as it threatens to be, the department will be forced to hold an election in the corn belt on whether to impose painful marketing quotas. And the election will come in the heat of the toughest primary fights in the country.

The administration is not anxious just now to mix corn and politics.

The trouble is that so many varieties of objections have arisen over the corn restrictions already in effect that some department officials fear the farmers might reject marketing quotas. That kind of defeat to the farm plan, coming right in the heat of the primaries, would be bad political medicine.

The farm law says that if the corn crop and carryover ever reach a certain emergency level, the farmers must be asked to vote on whether to impose drastic marketing quotas.

Corn Weather Good.

THE July estimate indicated that point had already been reached and passed—if the weather holds good. And the weather has been good. Not in a long time has the weather been so good for corn. The result is that the department is fearful that the August 10 crop report will show even more corn than was estimated in the July report.

These are the figures:

Emergency level (17.7 per cent above estimated export and consumption demands)—2,825,000,000 bushels.

1938 crop (July estimate), plus carryover—2,832,000,000 bushels.

That means, if other factors should remain unchanged, the department would have to call the much-feared elections, because of a 7,000,000-bushel excess.

The department has three avenues by which it may escape calling the election.

First, if the August report shows a smaller corn harvest, that may save the day. Present prospects give not much hope there.

Second, the Department can estimate a smaller carryover than the 350,000,000 to 400,000,000 bushels now forecast. But those figures can't be juggled much.

Third, the Department has a little leeway in determining the "emergency level." That avenue is the brightest department officials see. By crowding the "emergency level" higher they can face a bigger crop without being forced to call for marketing quotas.

Smack Into Primaries.

THE farm law has provided many sore spots in the farm belt. First off, farmers this spring were required to reduce acreage 25 per cent. Some complained of inequality in alloting acreage. The "Corn Belt Liberty League," originating in Illinois and spreading to Indiana, Iowa and Missouri, objects to "regimentation" of the farmer. And further, some farmers protest that restrictions apply only to the midwest corn belt.

If the August 10 report indicates as much corn as some suspect it may, and the department within 25 days thereafter holds an election to determine whether marketing quotas are to be imposed, that would hit right in the midst of the September primaries.

Timely Editorial

Motto For Moderns.

In dismissing a libel action against a pamphleteer who was charged with scurrilous attacks on religion, Judge Wallace of the New York court of general sessions said:

"We must suffer the demagog and the charlatan in order to make certain that we do not limit or restrain the honest commentator on public affairs. . . . It is wiser to bear with scandal-mongering than to extend the criminal law to become an instrument of oppression."

This sentiment might well serve as an inscription over the doors of any court of justice, for it is a telling rebuke to men in a hurry and advocates of shortcuts who forget, in their zeal for suppressing the nuisance of today, that they may be laying the foundation for the suppression of the genuine dissenter of tomorrow.—Baltimore Sun.

Monopoly Investigators Not 'Anti'

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney's monopoly investigation seems to differ from the generality of such inquiries in this respect:

The average investigation begins with a definitely pre-conceived notion on the investigators' part as to what they presently will reveal; they think they know what is the matter and simply intend to uncover it. Their aim principally is to give publicity to evils which they believe to exist. Their investigations are not properly investigations, but grills of supposed culprits—or at least suspects.

The O'Mahoney group is convinced, indeed, that something is the matter with our economics, but the senator himself and, I think, most of his fellow investigators, are not certain just what it is; their purpose is to find out, not to convict anyone in particular of any specific offense or offenses.

NOT A QUIZ

Parenthetically:

Of course it is incorrect to speak of the "O'Mahoney committee." Both houses of congress and the executive branch of the government are represented in it. However, Senator O'Mahoney is chairman, and it is necessary to designate it somehow.

It is not an "anti-monopoly" quiz, either, though frequently so called.

The Wyoming senator, at any rate, has done his best to make it clear that he is not "anti" any especial interest. Instead, his proposition is that basic economic conditions have changed, while our economic system has not been changed correspondingly. His purpose is intelligent readjustment. He wants no one's "scalp." What he is after is constructive suggestion, whether he gets it from a conservative captain of industry or a radical.

CHANGING CONDITIONS

Within my own recollection this was a country of small businesses—little factories, no chain stores, hand work, competing railroads; they competed too much.

The trend toward consolidation was a natural development; no one's dirty work.

Moreover, it had its advantages.

If I had to live now as primitively as I did when I was a boy (and my family was fairly well to do) it would kill me.

However, as materialities improved, there was an increasing loss in independence. When I was 21 if I lost my job I got another one; I did it during the depression of 1893. If I could not have done so I could have pre-empted a farm.

OUR ECONOMICS ARCHAIC?

Oh, yes, I am more comfortable today, but not so safe.

Yet, even for the sake of safety, I would not want time turned backward in its flight.

No running water! No toilets! Baths in washtubs! No heat except over the kitchen stove! Mule-drawn street cars! No flivvers! Much interstate travel in a caboose at the end of a freight train! I could not stand that, either.

And the younger generation? Why, it would be like a return to the Mesozoic period.

But, all this time, our economics have remained Mesozoic.

It is not necessarily Big Business' fault.

Big Business doubtless has been hoggish, but the rest of us have been fat-headed, too.

READJUSTMENT

And somehow Big Business has kept ahead of agriculture.

Big Business is compact and organizable. Labor is reasonably so likewise, and has given a tolerably good account of itself. But agriculture is diffused and has not combined effectively.

Consequently the balance has been bad, with bad results all around.

An all-around readjustment is what the O'Mahoney committee is shooting at.

It should not be regarded as a partisan New Deal committee, or as an Old Deal committee.

It perhaps is the best committee that congress and the executive end of the government ever had.

Should Ladies Be Lambasted?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

MISS X is "simply furious at the treatment ladies are receiving in the movies. In practically every performance," she continues, "one sees some helpless woman being slapped, spanked, dragged about by the hair or kicked out like a common tramp." So won't I say something about it?

Gladly, lady! In fact you'd have to tie me to keep me from it.

Such being the case, I'll break the Bad News without further delay. Instead of sympathizing with the indignant Miss X., I not only approve of our current craze for Larruping Ladies, but I'm all for promoting bigger and better Lambastings. Which same I consider to be one of the healthiest and most hopeful signs in an otherwise depressing era.

No, I'm not funning. I can think of no plan which would go further and faster toward improving civilization in general and feminine conduct in particular, than a program of enthusiastic sockdolagers on the female profile—port or starboard. The mantle of sweet Charity never covered more cussedness than the ancient notion that Ladies, being fragile flowers of peculiar purity, must never, never, NEVER be socked, no matter how ornery they act.

Nothing could be more revolting that the abuse of a really fine, fair, gentlewoman. Boiling in oil is too good for the brute, of either sex, who maltreats some kindly but physically weaker mortal. But I am convinced that civilization has been retarded for eons by our la-de-da theory that all Gals Should Be Treated Special Regardless. Of all our septic sentimentalities, this is the most poisonous.

The simple truth is that the average peeved female is just about as helpless as a riled tigress. In size she may be far inferior to her male opponent but in technique she has the Big Boy backed off the boards. A Bantamweight Baby Doll can commit more murder in one minute with a spiked heel, a swivel-jointed tongue and a few enameled fingernails than fifty Joe Louises, all armed with steel knuckles.

Generally speaking, even the meanest man will obey the accepted sporting rules of human behavior. But the usual femme recognizes no rules under heaven if she runs amok, for well she knows that she is protected by centuries of chivalrous tradition.

As a matter of fact, there is no sane reason why a Mean Missis shouldn't get what is coming to her. These—she announces triumphantly—are the days of Equal Rights. Then why not the day of Equal Raps? If a sullen male Bully deserves a Bounce on the Beezer, why shouldn't a sneering female Nag merit a well-aimed Jolt on the Jowl? If a masculine Liar and Cheat should be thrown out on his ear, why shouldn't a feminine Sneak and Trickster be accorded the same on her equivalent? The answer is — she SHOULD! And, thank Heaven, some of the Brothers are working up enough spunk to give her what she asked for.

These remarks may horrify many a reader. How, they will wail, dare I suggest much treatment for the wives and mothers of the nation? The answer is simple—I suggest it because I am one of those wives and mothers myself . . . because I hold my service and sex in the highest esteem . . . and because I consider such Cantankerous Cats to be a disgrace to all womanhood. And the sooner they have some sense smacked into 'em, the happier all decent, square-shootin' women will be.

So, alley-oop, Hollywood! Go to it, Boys! Bring on your hair brushes and bedroom slippers . . . and don't mind me. Maybe I'm shocking. And maybe I'm quaint. But personally, I've got a notion that Gals Should Play The Game. Or take the consequences—

You know where.

What's Happened?

A Week-End Summary of Current Events.

W LEE O'DANIEL, 46, plump and dimpled, didn't have a poll-tax receipt, so he couldn't vote. But Texans who could, last week-end, gave him a clear majority over 11 rivals in the Democratic primary, thereby making him their state's next governor.

Two months ago he was selling flour and gabbing on the radio. A hint that he might run brought 55,000 letters from his listeners. So he took a platform (the Ten Commandments), a motto (the Golden Rule), a slogan (more smokestacks and fewer politicians), an issue ($30-a-month pensions for the old folks), and a singing band ("Them Hillbillies Are Politicians Now"), and won " a great victory for the thinking Christian people."

Congressmen's Fate.

Jones and Johnson were renominated. But Maverick and McFarlane were out-distanced by old-age pension advocates.

A stout, Irish, San Antonio lawyer, Paul Kilday, beat Maverick, who was known as the "spark-plug" of a small left wing bloc in the house. Another lawyer, Ed Gossett, ran ahead of McFarlane but the latter looked forward to a runoff "on more equal terms." A third pension-promiser, Lindley Beckworth, 25, was slated for a runoff with Brady Gentry, a county judge, for the house seat of Morgan Sanders.

Congressmen Patman, Dies, Rayburn, Sumners, Patton, Lanham and Kleberg were among the incumbents renominated. Many had no contests.

In Colorado, meanwhile, the state Democratic assembly met, and designated Sen. Alva B. Adams, a lawyer educated at Yale and Columbia and a foe of the supreme court and reorganization bills, as its senatorial choice in the September primary.

More Showdowns Due.

Six states—Kentucky, Tennessee, Kansas, Missouri, Virginia and West Virginia—will hold primaries this coming week.

QUOTES

Henry Ford, at 75: "I never gave a single thought to making money . . . I have been too busy doing things to worry."

George Bernard Shaw, at 82: "I wish people would stop talking about my birthday."

At Home

When Lawyers Meet . . .

The American Bar association's 1938 convention, in Cleveland this week, got into arguments over the eligibility of Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black, and the report of an administrative-law committee which, Jerome Frank thought, cast a "slur" on SEC Chairman William O. Douglas.

Douglas, meanwhile, told the lawyers that "prophets of disaster" had obscured issues presented by the public utility holding company act. Supreme Court Justice Stanley Reed urged the bar to help mould the present "in conformity with the ideals of the past." And Attorney General Homer Cummings opined that "delay in the administration of justice is one of the shocking things about America."

Floods and Fires.

St. Swithin was a ninth century bridge-builder, and people say that if it rains on St. Swithin's day, July 15, it will rain for the next 40 days. It did rain in part of the east last July 15, and a lot of damp weather ensued. Rain and floods, from New England to Texas, took 12 lives and caused damage totaling millions of dollars. Scientists scoffed at the superstition, ascrib the moisture to "pressure" areas; and this week there was a let-up.

Smoke from 350 forest fires in the U. S. Pacific northwest was so thick over Puget sound last week-end that ships had to use their fog horns, and in Canada ashes sifted down on Vancouver, B. C., from a 100,000-acre inferno 100 miles north. But this week the wind died down and cooler weather gave fire fighters the upper hand.

Sightseers Saved.

New Mexico's Gov. Clyde Tinsley, a zoological collector, has turned this summer to searching for missing persons.

Last week three women from Kentucky vanished near the Perpetual Ice Caves southwest of Grants, N. M. But searchers directed by Tinsley found them, bruised, weary and hungry, after four days' wandering in the badlands where outlaws used to hide.

Politics

12 Years for F. D. R.?

The third-term-for-Roosevelt talk began more than a year ago.

Last week Republican chairman John D. M. Hamilton called a statement by WPA Administrator Hopkins, that 90 per cent of the people on relief are for the president, the actual start of a third-term movement. (The senate campaign funds committee subsequently held that Hopkins' statement was "in no way coercion.") And this week Republican Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg predicted Mr. Roosevelt would try for a third term and fail.

"I keynoted the president into the White House twice and I might possibly do it again," said Democratic Sen. Alben W. Barkley.

Pump-Priming Program.

Expansion of the federal pump-priming program appeared possible this week when RFC Chairman Jesse Jones and PWA Administrator Harold Ickes agreed it was feasible for RFC to lend money on revenue-producing public construction projects, and thereby let PWA make more grants.

Treasury figures released Wednesday enabled newsmen to report that federal and state expenditures to combat depression and unemployment have totaled nearly $22,000,000,000 since 1932.

Agriculture Secretary Wallace, speaking in Des Moines the same day, blamed Republican policies in the '20's for the "unusual increase in federal debt" in the '30's.

Investigations.

The senate campaign funds committee has decided Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, North Dakota, California, Pennsylvania, Kentucky and Tennessee campaigns need investigators' attention, and has asked the postoffice department to check up on "franked letters" in South Dakota.

Abroad

The Two Wars.

In Spain: Both sides recently sprang a surprise, insurgents in the west, loyalists in the east. The insurgents gained considerable ground near Portugal; loyalists then won back considerable territory in Catalonia, and converged their forces on Gandesa, which had been the insurgents' district headquarters.

In China: Japan's Asiatic Expeditionary Force this week took Kiukiang, a Yangtze river town 135 miles below Hankow, then trudged on upstream. Hankow replaced Nanking as China's capital last year, and this year Chungking is to replace Hankow. (The U. S. embassy will be moved in a few days.) Chungking is 500 miles farther up the Yangtze valley and doesn't have a railroad.

Puerto Rican Shooting.

Puerto Rico has its own legislature, but its governor is appointed by the U. S. president.

Major General Blanton Winship has been governor since 1934. During the biggest parade in the island's history, on the 40th anniversay of American occupation, an attempt was made to kill Winship. He wasn't hurt. But two Puerto Ricans were killed and 31 injured. The parade continued. And police rounded up men described as Nationalists, who want independence for Puerto Rico.

Bogota Tragedy.

Last Sunday was the 155th anniversary of the birth of Simon Bolivar, "South America's George Washington," and there was a military pageant at Bogota, Colombia, attended by 50,000 persons. It ended abruptly when a stunting plane plowed into the spectators, killing 53, injuring more than 100.

Labor

NLRB Under Fire.

The NLRB has been swatted recently by a U. S. circuit court, a congressman, the Chamber of Commerce, AFL and a bar association committee:

The court held, in the Fansteel case at Chicago, that an employer can fire men who take possession of his property against his will. NLRB contended that an employer can't fire a sit-down striker for belonging to a union, and considered an appeal to the supreme court.

Rep. Clare E. Hoffman cited the constitution and asked if he could mail copies of an anti-CIO speech to strikers, after NLRB had held it was unfair for an employer to distribute them to his employes.

The U. S. Chamber of Commerce called the Wagner law a "one-sided failure. AFLs' official magazine charged NLRB was promoting "insurgent" unions. The American Bar association's labor committee said the board tends to "intensify class antagonism."

But NLRB went on making history: It held that an employer who discharges men for union activities is liable for their job-hunting expenses.

Law of Wages.

The Walsh-Healey law requires companies receiving government contracts exceeding $10,000 to pay prevailing wages approved by Labor Secretary Perkins.

Hearings on steel wages were held this week in Washington. And a labor department spokesman predicted that the minimum set for workers on government steel construction would become the base pay throughout the industry.

CIO urged a base rate of 62½ cents in the big eastern producing region, 60 cents in the west and 45 cents in the south.

Civil Liberty.

A vice president of Republic Steel told the senate civil-liberties committee this week that he considered labor espionage "a good thing" sometimes, but the company police chief said Republic had discontinued its labor spying.

In Short

Chosen: Dr. Ben M. Cherrington, of Denver, to direct U. S. cultural relations with other nations.

Considered: By Mrs. Theodore G. Bilbo, Mississippi senator's ex-wife, a race for office against him.

Married: Louise Miller, 18, granddaughter of Andrew Carnegie, to J. F. Gordon Thompson, 40, lawyer, in Scotland.
